Our Firm

Meyers Fried-Grodin LLP is a boutique law firm handling labor and employment law matters throughout the state of New Jersey and in New York City. We have offices in Morris County, New Jersey and New York City.

Labor and employment law is complex, impactful and quickly changing.

When problems occur at work, they can have a huge impact on both employees and businesses.

Each attorney at Meyers Fried-Grodin LLP has devoted their legal career to employment law and deals with these issues every day. It is their sole focus.

In total, our attorneys have more than two decades of combined employment law and litigation experience. They are viewed by clients as trusted advisors and tenacious advocates. The firm's representation of both employees and employers gives our attorneys insight into the values, strategies and tactics used by both sides in problem-solving, negotiation and litigation. This gives our employment lawyers a unique perspective.

Firm founders Jonathan Meyers and Lisa Fried-Grodin previously worked together in the labor and employment department of one of the nation's largest law firms and for one of the largest labor and employment law firms in New Jersey. They call upon the experience that they have gained in labor and employment law to ensure that small to mid-sized companies and individuals have access to the representation they need for their labor and employment law matters.
